(A) Global warming is a rise in global temperatures. It has led to many problems on the earth. In addition to high temperature and unusual weather conditions (狀況), it has caused another serious problem that affects our lives—glacier retreat (消退).

Glacier retreat refers to the melting of the ice in both the North Pole (極) and the South Pole. The melting glaciers may cause the rise of sea levels. This would make some land sink into the sea. Moreover, as the salty sea water rises onto the earth, it pollutes the usable (可用的) water of lakes and rivers. Since there is not enough fresh water for farming, we would not have enough food to eat.

Glacier retreat has now caught several people's attention, and many people have started to focus on the problem of global warming. In fact, there are many things we can do to stop global warming from getting worse. For example, we can choose to use recycled products or begin to plant more trees. We can also ride a bicycle instead of a scooter. These things help prevent or reduce air pollution and thus protect the earth. Since we only have one earth, we should all do our best to help the earth survive.

26. According to the passage, global warming has led to many problems EXCEPT for _____.

- (A) high temperature (B) giant trees
(C) glacier retreat (D) unusual weather conditions

27. According to the passage, glacier retreat may cause _____.

- (A) more ice (B) falling sea levels
(C) sinking land (D) more usable water

28. Which of the following may help stop global warming from getting worse?

- (A) Riding a bicycle. (B) Cutting more trees.
(C) Riding a scooter. (D) Using plastic product

(B) Have you ever gone into a supermarket to buy one thing but end up buying several different things? You might wonder why this happens. It certainly is not by chance. In fact, supermarket operators (經營者) constantly study the consumers' shopping habits and use this information to make people buy more things.

To begin with, supermarket operators usually put the things that people often buy at the back of the stores. Things like milk and eggs are often put at the back so that shoppers have to walk through the whole store. Along the way, shoppers often pick up other things that are not on their shopping lists. Signs are also used to attract the attention of customers. Some supermarkets put on signs with the words "Everyday Low Price" on them even though these products are not actually on sale. Finally, small items, such as gum (口香糖), candy, and magazines, are always put near the checkout (收銀台) lines. Therefore, as customers stand in line, many of them pick up these small items as a result of impulse buying (衝動性購買).

Supermarkets do all they can to encourage shoppers to buy more things. The next time you go shopping, be aware of these tricks.

29. The products in supermarkets are placed in certain positions according to _____.

- (A) the prices of the products                      (B) the dates of manufacture
(C) the customers' shopping habits              (D) the weight of the products

30. According to the passage, why are milk and eggs often put at the back of a supermarket?

- (A) Shoppers may thus walk through the store and buy extra items on the way.
(B) They are put in the refrigerators, which are often set at the back.
(C) They are the last things to be picked up because milk is heavy and eggs are easy to break.
(D) People thus spend less time finding the location.

31. According to the passage, which of the following items may be a result of impulse buying?

- (A) Eggs.                      (B) Milk.                      (C) Magazines.                      (D) Bikes.

32. According to the passage, which of the following is NOT mentioned as a way for supermarket owners to sell more products?

- (A) Choosing one product in the store to be on sale every week.
(B) Placing candy and gum near the checkout lines.
(C) Using signs saying "Everyday Low Price" to attract customers.
(D) Putting the most often bought items at the back of a supermarket.

33. According to the passage, which of the following is true?

- (A) Lowering the prices is the only way to make shoppers buy more things.
(B) Customers often find gum and candy at the back of a supermarket.
(C) The back of a store is the best location for new products.
(D) To catch shoppers' attention, the positions of goods are important.
