七、閱讀測驗(共6分,每題2分)

Have you ever heard of war correspondent? War correspondents are reporters who go to war zones to report on the events of a war. Their job is to describe what has happened at war zones as best as they can, which includes showing the details of the conflicts as well as the impact those events have on people. To get the most thrilling or precious pictures and videos, war correspondents need to get as close to the frontlines as possible. Hence, their lives are always at high risk every moment they stay at the war zones. Some of them are injured, others are kidnapped, and still others are even killed. Being a war correspondent is obviously a very dangerous profession. However, with their hard work, the public can get to know more true stories in these distant places.
