題目 ： Which Would You Make Your Own Personal Weather Forecaster?
說明 ： 閱讀下列短文並回答問題

Animals and insects react to the weather in many different ways. By observing these reactions, we can predict changes in the weather. Cats and groundhogs, for example, are both great weather forecasters. Look at the following information about their amazing instincts!

Cats

Behavior they show to predict the weather

- Sneezing once, showing rain is on the way
- Sleeping with their backs to the fire, showing cold weather is coming
- Yawning and stretching out, showing we can expect fair weather

The qualities that makes them nature's weather forecasters

- Their inner ears may be able to detect changes in atmospheric pressure.
-They are sensitive to smells.

Groundhogs

Behavior they show to predict the weather

- Seeing their own shadow on the ground, showing winter will persist for six more weeks
- Not seeing their own shadow, showing spring will arrive early

The qualities that make them natural weather forecasters

- As true hibernators, they can sense whether the winter is going to be harsh or not.
