六、閱讀測驗(共 12 分, 每題 12 分)

Are you a kind person? If so, you may have good manners. These days, however, forgetting manners at times is common. Here are some tips on how to behave politely and kindly in public. First, put away your phone or headphones when you are talking with someone. Focusing on each other and making eye contact are important. People may think you don't really care about them if you don't pay full attention. Second, hold the door open for those who are behind you, or let others exit an elevator first before you step in. Third, if people drop things on the streets, you can help pick them up; others would consider you a warm-hearted person. Simple acts like these will make communities and cities better places to live in.
